She had read of a marvelous clixir of life—a reguvenating process offered by a famobs douter in Switzerland who was advertising for patients. And what had she to lose she thought. The man she loved had left her, she was told; her father was cruel and her life was a mockery.

"A Question of Honor," Big In Entertainment, Opens at Strand Today For Two Days Only.

Fans who like mountain stories, butdoor genery and red-blooded women have a treat coming to them in "A Question of Honor," the First National attraction starring Anita Stewart, which will open a two-day engagement at the Strand theatre to-

Stewart, which will open a two-day engagement at the Strand theatre to-day, two days only.

The captivating star has the role of Anne Wilmot, a leading society debutante who is brought to the west as a bait for a staiwart engineer whom Anne's uncle hopes to bend to his une. In the wilderness of the High Sierras Anne discovers her uncle's scheme. A huge dam has been huilt for irrigation purposes and the financial interests, determined to obtain the property for a railroad right of way, plot to destroy the dam in order to make the settlers sell their land.

How the girls decision to test her own metile is worked out in the combat between the settlers and the New York interests is visualized in a drama as gripping as any that has come to the screen. Beautiful exteriors combine with night battles and thrills to make the picture one of unusual interest.

Miss Stewart appears to charming advantage in a role that requires riding breeches and sombrero. While she is not a novice to such roles, her former picture, "The Fighting Shepherdess," having been a distinct hit "A Question of Honor" provides a surprise in the characterization entirely different from anything else this captivating star has appeared in.

The pleture was adapted from the Ruth Cross sovel of the same number and produced under the direction of Edwin Carewe.
